HONGKONG, NOVEMBER 10th, 1896. 80 ozs. of gold. The cyanide plant worked 20 WE are glad to see that our influential contemporary, the British Trade Journal, has taken up the question of the government of the Crown Colonies, and we hope will continue to work on the theme until it succeeds in raising a general discussion in the press, which would in all probability lead to action. In arging that a Royal Commission should be appointed to investigate the whole subject with a view to devise Barcelona to Singaporo in 23 days. She is to means of according a wider measure of selfgovernment to the British people of the Crown Colonies our contemporary says :-"Steps are taken every day in the self-"governing colonies for the development "of trade and the improvement of the "colonists' condition which they would "never have been allowed to take under "Crown Colony rule. If such freedom can "there any danger in bestowing it upon "the few hundreds or thousands of the were treated at the Government Civil Hospital; "smaller colonies?" This is written wit reference chiefly to the planting colonies, but the same remarks apply almost equally culty in getting evidence, first of all one story to commercial and distributing centres like Hongkoug. The cause of greater murder near Green Island were brought up at freedom will not be advanced, however, by exaggeration. In the same issue of the British Trade Journal in which the article we refer to appears, there appears also a letter signed Thomas D. Groven, and dated from Sava, Fiji Islands. Mr. GROVER Bays that his experience, gained by some years of commercial life, is that British Crown rule over small feeble colonies is death; he indulges in a violent tirade against British officials as a body and makes the following remarkable statements:-"I have "visited the French colonies and have no affords so as to enable them to take up arms on "hesitation in affirming that the system in "force among them is far superior, and is restricted to those who are either at present "must in the future tend to increase in the Volunteers or Yeomany Cavalry or who "their influence and prosperity, while that "of British Crown Colonies must decline. may be signed on Wednesday, Thursday, and "It is out of date and belongs to the four- Friday this week or next from 6 p.m. to 9 p.m. "teenth or lifteenth century, when men subscription only sixpence, and a bailge, ribbon, lived only to plot, supplant, and to ruin &c., are given on enrolment.

Mr. exceptional to load to such statements as fancied grievance in Fiji he has allowed his imagination to run wild on subject of alien rule. Universal experionce is against him as regards French colonial administration, which is notorious for its ineptness. Mr. GROVER's letter is so absurdly extravagant that it would not be worthy of scrious attention were it not for the fact that prominence is given to it by a reference in our contemporary's leading article, in which we are told that it brings out vividly the condition and prospects of Fiji. A great deal too vividly, we should say. Nor can we concur in our contemporary's estimate of the character of the average colonial official. "Many of them," we are told, "unfortunately are the disaffected failures "of political, legal, or military life. They "regard their work in a Crown Colony as "involving a sort of expatriation. These "write endless letters on the smallness of "their pay, the high cost of living and "dressing, and the monotony of life in the benstly hole? to which an ungrateful country has sent them. They care noth-"ing for their work, nor are their interests" bound up with those of the planters and settlers among whom they live. The height of their ambition is to be given a 'six months' leave of absence, upon which "they pack up for London." On the contrary, the colonial officials are a well selected body of men, and it is not the individuals but the system that is to blame. The officials, however well intentioned they may be, cannot be expected to have a very clear apprehension of the requirements of a community with whose interests their own are only indirectly associated, and the tradition that officials and unofficials are to be regarded as occupying opposite campanets as a blight on progress, proposals coming from an unofficial source being generally regarded with disfavour in the first instance, though they may ultimately after much circumlocution be adopted. If the communities of the Crown Colonies were allowed to manage their own purely local affairs improvements could be effected with more rapidity and less friction. There were 2,363 visitors to the City Hall
